We reviewed this first script of the new General Electric series called "Cheating Cheaters" which has some innocuous references to the FBI. Los Angeles was instructed to advise Alexander to avoid further references to the FBI in subsequent programs.

CURRENT DEVELOPMENTS:

Los Angeles advised by teletype dated 7-25 of a script on the case to be used by General Electric "True." Jack Webb is the host-narrator for this program which is being produced by Warner Brothers. Webb has requested Bureau review of this script. He would like our reaction and requests expeditious response.

REC- 54

OBSERVATIONS:

Webb is the well-known "Joe Friday" of "Dragnet." There is no derogatory information in Bufiles identifiable with him and we have had no correspondence with him. In 1958 he wrote a book called "The Badge" which he autographed to the Director. In 1955 he requested to meet the Director; however, the Director was unavailable.

CRIME RESEARCH

We should stop this series insofar as it relates to the FBI before it starts. If we review the script on the case and suggest any changes we will have given a tacit stamp of approval regardless of any disclaimers we may make. Having reviewed and "approved" one script we can reasonably expect that the series will become a series on the FBI since we have the best available material for television presentation. We can then expect to receive each succeeding script for approval. We certainly do not want to become a research establishment for Warner Brothers or Jack Webb in a continuing TV series.

The script on the [] case has been reviewed. It is inaccurate as to the case itself and considerably distorted as to the Bureau's methods of operation. Jack Webb is the host-narrator for this program which is being produced by Warner Brothers. Webb has requested Bureau review of this script. He would like our reaction and requests expeditious response.

My memorandum of July 31, 1962, reflected the inaccuracies and distorted facts concerning the FBI in the script. Referenced memorandum recommended that the script be returned to Jack Webb without comment. This was done and the Los Angeles Office reported back accordingly. Referenced memorandum further reflected that I make contact with our sources at Warner Brothers and steer them well away from FBI cases in this General Electric series.

REC- 54 6

I talked with Bill Hendricks, Vice President in charge of Public Relations at Warner Brothers on August 21, 1962. I told him that our relations had been excellent thus far and of the fact the Director was particularly well pleased with our latest production, "FBI Code 98." I told Hendricks, however, it would be a little difficult to establish a pleasant relationship with Warner Brothers in the future if an independent producer on their lot used "FBI materials" in putting together a TV show. Hendricks was then given the background with respect to Webb and the General Electric "True" TV series.

I explained to Webb at some length the fact that we desired to preserve our material for possible usage in the future and also desired to control our material so that it could be presented to the general public in the best light possible. He stated he thoroughly agreed with this logic and that, with respect to the [redacted] case, he would change the script completely so that it would not closely follow the [redacted] case. He stated he would also remove all references to the FBI in the script.

Although Webb naturally would be expected to be quite polite to us following his talk with Kalmenson, I found him to be a very logical person to talk to and, I believe, a very sincere individual.

I was quite amused over his bitterness towards Chief of Police Parker of Los Angeles. He stated that in the "Dragnet" series, he had had constant trouble with Parker and often had to refuse filming productions that Parker insisted on Webb producing. He specifically mentioned that Parker had been interested in "blowing up" his own name. According to Webb, there is little love lost between Webb and Parker.

We will follow this matter closely.

BACKGROUND

(1962)

In July, Los Angeles made available a script for the first show in this series which started in September. The script was furnished the Los Angeles Office by Jesse K. Alexander

We reviewed this script which had some innocuous references to the FBI and instructed Los Angeles to tell Alexander to avoid further references to the FBI in future programs.

Later in July, Los Angeles advised us that Jack Webb, the well known "Joe Friday" of television, was producing a show in this series on the [] case and Webb requested us to review the script and give him our reaction. The script was inaccurate and distorted and was returned to Webb by our Los Angeles Office without comment.

Thereafter, on August 21, 1962, you, Mr. DeLoach, talked to Bill Hendricks, Vice President in Charge of Public Relations at Warner Brothers, and told him that he should put a damper on Webb to stop using FBI materials in his television series.

CURRENT DEVELOPMENTS

The Director has received a telegram sent on November 8th from the Public Relations firm apparently handling the "General Electric True" account. The firm calls attention to two programs to be telecast on November 11th and November 18th respectively on CBS. They are called "The Last Day" and "Man With a Suitcase." The telegram says they are based on documented material and will present the menace of international communism. With a compliment to the Director, the firm requests his comments on these presentations. The Crime Research Section will monitor these programs.

RECOMMENDATION

In line with our previous actions, it is recommended that the attached letter be sent to this Public Relations firm.

In my memorandum of November 8th, it was pointed out that the Director had received a telegram from a public relations firm handling this show, requesting the Director's comments on two episodes to be presented on November 11th and November 18th. Producers of this show had sought our co-operation which we declined.

The show on November 11th was called "The Last Day." Until the end of the program it appeared that this was a presentation of active sabotage against a defense plant in the United States by an agent of a foreign power. The actions of this saboteur before and during the active sabotage were shown in such fashion as to leave no doubt that this was the portrayal of an actual sabotage case. The switch came at the end, however, when it developed that what had actually taken place was the final day of schooling for a Russian Major whose act of "sabotage" was his final examination in a course in espionage and sabotage being taught by the Russians, using a mock typical American town and mock typical American people as the setting. We have had reports of such a training course having been established in Russia and it has received considerable publicity.

The only reference to the FBI was in the closing statement by the narrator, Jack Webb, in which he referred to [REDACTED]

RECOMMENDATION:

For information. The second program in this series on communism will be presented on November 18th. It will be monitored in the Crime Research Section.

Bill Hendricks, Public Relations Department, Warner Brothers, has forwarded to us a script which had just been completed by Jack Webb (of "Dragnet" fame) and would like the Bureau to review it as soon as possible and give any comments we may desire to make.

It will be recalled that Webb did a show in the "True series" on the [redacted] case. This was aired last Sunday night. This script was reviewed and returned to Webb without comment. The script was inaccurate and distorted the Bureau's methods of operations. It should be noted that Webb is an independent producer and is merely using Warner Brothers' facilities and lot.

It is further noted that Webb has indicated that he has bought the rights to Miriam Ottenberg's book, "The Federal Investigators!"

(It is interesting to note that this case is written up in "The Federal Investigators" and the chapter on this case is entitled "Pattern for Espionage".

It is noted that Webb goes a step further and even uses the same name for the principal Agent in the script (Goodwin). There is very little resemblance between the script and the chapter in Ottenberg's book, Ottenberg's book being accurate.

"PATTERN FOR ESPIONAGE"

This story begins in East Berlin and centers around a chance meeting of a U. S. Army Colonel and a Major in the Soviet Army. The offer of $10,000 is made by the Russian for exchange of information. The story then continues when the Army officer returns to the United States and arrangements are made through the FBI to have a Special Agent made up to resemble the Colonel. There is a meet, money is exchanged, phony documents are exchanged and at the end the FBI moves in and makes the arrest. (A detailed synopsis of the script is attached.)

OBSERVATIONS:

There is very little in the script that follows the true facts of the case. It purports to be based on [redacted]

In the broad sense, the only true factors in the script are [redacted]

[redacted] The rest is pure fiction.

INACCURACIES:

Frankly, the script depicts our operations in a satisfactory manner. In fact, we come off as the real heroes. The public's overall impression will be that the FBI is a super intelligence agency. There are two places in the script which we feel objectionable. They are:

1. On page 10, an Assistant Director, in discussing this case with other Bureau personnel, states that the FBI wants to get the "bigwigs" "even if it takes us into the Russian Embassy."

2. On page 22, an SAC is directing operations in a plant set up for the purpose of observing a meet between the disguised Special Agent and a Russian. When this hitherto unknown Russian appears, the SAC says that no photographs of him will be necessary because "we've already got a gallery on that joker. Name's Maksim Kartynov, part of the Soviet team in the United Nations Military Staff Committee."

RECOMMENDATION:

Webb is an independent producer and Warner Brothers has no control over his script material. It is felt that the time has come to contact Webb and tell him that we do not appreciate the prostitution of FBI material such as depicted in this script. If we allow him to continue, then FBI "material" will be fair game for the many independent producers in Hollywood. We, of course, should preserve our material in view of the potentialities of a carefully controlled FBI series at some time in the future.

SYNOPSIS OF JACK WEBB SCRIPT
"PATTERN FOR ESPIONAGE"

The first scene takes place in East Berlin, Germany, in August, 1954, and depicts a chance meeting at a sidewalk cafe between U. S. Army Colonel Harvey Madison and Major Nikoli Brin, a Red Army officer. Madison and Brin have been acquainted in the past. Brin indicates that he has been instructed by his superiors to offer Madison $10,000 in exchange for information which Madison would be expected to furnish the Russians upon his return to the United States. Madison is noncommittal at the time. As a result of Madison's report to his superiors, the FBI is brought into the case.

The action shifts to the United States where arrangements are made to have a special Agent made up to resemble Colonel Madison. When Madison arrives in this country, he is placed in immediate contact with the FBI. Madison is surveilled from the airport to a New York apartment by a woman spy. Arrangements are made for him to remain in this apartment together with Special Agent Jack Goodwin, who is disguised as Madison. Sometime later, Goodwin, posing as the Colonel, meets a Soviet Agent, Maksim Kartynov, on the street. This meeting is covered by a nearby FBI plant. Goodwin is given an envelope by the Soviet and told to furnish information regarding missile installations. A week later, Goodwin, still posing as the Colonel, keeps a second rendezvous with Kartynov in a cocktail lounge. Goodwin is given money and he furnishes documents which he insists must be copied by the Russians so the originals can be returned the following day. During this meeting, Alice McHenry, niece of the real Colonel, chances to come by the table where Goodwin, knowing her only from a photograph, introduces her to Kartynov. The niece gives no indication that she knows Goodwin is not really her uncle. Kartynov and Goodwin go to an east side apartment where Wallace Farley and Josef Linsky assist in copying the documents.

Sometime later, another meeting with Kartynov is arranged. Kartynov picks up Goodwin in his car and suddenly FBI cars converge and force them to stop. The Agents identify themselves. Kartynov protests his diplomatic immunity but, nevertheless, he and Goodwin are taken to separate FBI cars. In the final narration, it is indicated that Kartynov was declared persona non grata and expelled from the country. The other members of his group, Linsky and Farley, received sentences of ten to thirty years for espionage.

SUBJECT: "PATTERN FOR ESPIONAGE"
JACK WEBB TV SERIES
GENERAL ELECTRIC "TRUE" SERIES

The Director approved our recommendation that I talk with Jack Webb, an independent producer on the Warner Brothers Studio lot, regarding the usage of FBI material in the filming of his General Electric "True" series currently being shown on CBS-TV.

I talked with Ben Kalmenson, Executive Vice President, Warner Brothers Studio, on Friday, 12-28-62, and told him the circumstances. The fact was particularly brought out that Webb had sent in a script based on the [] case and previously had filmed a production which obviously was a take-off on the [] case.

I told Kalmenson that obviously we did not desire that FBI material be used because of several reasons. Principally, we still had hopes of some day having a TV series of our own which could be carefully controlled and place the FBI and law enforcement in the best possible light. Secondly, that a lack of control over productions by an independent producer would not only distort the true facts but would present an unfair picture to the general public. Kalmenson, who is most friendly, agreed accordingly and stated he would call Webb immediately.

Kalmenson called me back Friday night, 12-28-62, and stated he had discussed the matter with Webb and Webb was extremely apologetic. Kalmenson told me that Webb would call Monday morning, 12-31-62, to personally offer his apologies to the FBI and indicate that he would take any course of action we desired in this matter.

Webb did call 12-31-62 and talked for approximately 35 minutes. He stated he had been very wrong in making commitments to film any material which might possibly touch on cases handled by the FBI without first clearing with the FBI. He advised that the [] case rights had been purchased from "True" magazine to be used in the General Electric series. He went on to say that obviously he should have checked with us prior to agreeing to this commitment. He went to some length to explain that he never presented law enforcement in any unfavorable light and that certainly he had the highest admiration for the Director and the FBI. He went on to advise that in connection with the current matter, the production of a program reflecting the FBI's work in the [] case, he would be happy to either eliminate the script or change it in any manner we desired.
